Jordan named National League of Nursing Ambassador

The Seminole State College Nursing and Health Sciences Department has announced that J. Jeffery Jordan, MSN, RN, MBA, CEN, CNE, EMT-LP Nursing Faculty, has been appointed by the National League for Nursing to serve as an NLN Ambassador.

Donna Chambers, Chair of the SSC Nursing and Health Sciences Division, said "We appreciate Mr. Jordan accepting this role of responsibility and for being an encouraging role model for other faculty seeking professional development."

As a participant in this elite group, Jordan will help keep faculty and administration informed about NLN's initiatives, grant opportunities, conferences, publications, workshops and other benefits available to NLN members.

"We created this selective program to make it as easy as possible for nurse faculty and nursing programs at all levels of academia to understand what the NLN has to offer to enhance professional development and status," said NLN CEO Dr. Beverly Malone. "At the same time, we expect the Ambassadors to communicate to NLN professional staff and the board what issues and challenges are of greatest concern to nurse educators in the field so that we can maximize the effectiveness of our programming and services. The Ambassadors are, in effect, the NLN's 'eye's and ears' on campus."

Jordan who has been a nursing instructor with SSC since 2008, has a Masters in Science in Nursing Education from Southern Nazarene University and is anticipating the completion of a Master's of Science in Nursing in Nursing Education and Administration from the University of Phoenix in October 2010. He is licensed by the Oklahoma State Board of Nursing, Texas Department of Health and the Texas State Board of Nursing Examiners.

On the SSC campus, Jordan is active on the School of Nursing curriculum committee, Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) and retention committee. He is a member of the Emergency Nurses Association where he currently serves as President of the Oklahoma Emergency Nurses Association and is a member of the Nursing Honor Society of Sigma Theta Tau International.

The NLN Ambassador program was established in the fall of 2006 with an initial cadre of 126 members who teach in all types of nursing programs – practical nurse, associate degree, diploma, baccalaureate, master's and doctoral. Today there are over 700 ambassadors representing schools of nursing in 49 states plus Canada, Guam and the Virgin Islands. New ones are appointed twice a year to meet the goal of having one NLN Ambassador in every school of nursing.

Observed Dr. Malone, "We are confident that the insight gained through this valuable relationship will help make the NLN more responsive to the needs of our dedicated nurse educators."

For more information about the nursing program at SSC call (405) 382-9205 or email nursing@sscok.edu.

SSC Campus hosts State Economic Development Partnership Program

Seminole State College was the site for a statewide Economic Development Recognition Program hosted by the Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education April 26 afternoon at the Enoch Kelly Haney Center. Chancellor of Higher Education Glen Johnson and college and university presidents and administrators from across the state, joined business leaders being honored for their partnership efforts with higher education.

The Economic Development Partnership Recognition program honors outstanding partnerships that lead to significant contributions in educating and developing Oklahoma's workforce.

The joint efforts of Seminole State College and Citizen Potawatomi Community Development Corporation have had a positive impact on the economic climate of Central Oklahoma, according to SSC President Dr. Jim Utterback.

The organizations' collective work has fostered the growth of existing businesses and assisted with the recruitment of new industries to the area. The Rural Business and Resources Center at Seminole State College and the tribe's Community Development Corporation are both highly involved in two major economic development organizations – Oklahoma Southeast and Cross Timbers RC&D. The groups combine their efforts to create jobs and provide financing and other services to businesses throughout the southeast quadrant of the state.

The past year has seen continued success and growth for CPCDC and their clients. They made over $4.6 million in loans to 20 Native American-owned companies looking to start or grow their business. As a result, these firms were able to create or retain over 80 jobs.

According to SSC Rural Business and Resources Center Director Larry Smith, "The Citizen Potawatomi Community Development Corporation and Executive Director Kristi Coker Bias have been a constant resource for the College's economic development office. The two entities share information to assist clients and share ideas to provide economic stability to communities throughout their service area. Specifically, they have jointly worked on

The tribe has also supported capital improvements on the Seminole State College campus through support of the SSC Educational Foundation. Potawatomi Assistant Chair Linda Capps served as a Trustee on the Foundation board for many years and Kristi Coker Bias currently represents the tribe on that board.

"The partnership between Seminole State College and the Citizen Potawatomi Community Development Corporation has been extremely beneficial in economic and educational efforts. We are proud of our partnership and pleased that our joint efforts have been recognized by the State Regents," said SSC Vice President for Institutional Advancement Lana Reynolds.

It's a lot of fun to watch them helping us with this annual project", states Marci Donaho, museum Executive Director.

The 17th annual Jazzy's Egg Run was held Saturday, April 23 on the museum grounds.
